The 2006-2007 season will mark the end of a very successful era in the history of the Cortland Women’s Tennis program. Seniors Amanda Husson and Andrea TerBush will compete in their last year of eligibility.

May of 2006 saw the graduation of five players who entered Cortland in the fall of 2002 and represented 20 combined years of competition. Their participation resulted in three consecutive conference championships and culminated in a third place finish for Cortland in the New York State Woman’s Collegiate Athletic Association, the best at the school in more than 20 years.

“We were fortunate that a unique set of factors brought together an excellent group of young women who worked hard to develop into one of the finest teams in the state,” commented head coach Peter Cahill ’66. “It was a pleasure to be involved as a coach with a group like this.”

Coach Cahill also noted that “the 2006-2007 and 2007-2008 seasons do offer a unique opportunity for incoming freshman players to become starters on a team with a significant history on both the state and national level. Although we are sorry to see a fine group of upperclassmen graduate, we do look forward to the challenges and opportunities presented us over the next two years.”
