Outdoor Education Facilities

Center for Environmental and Outdoor Education
Miller Building, Room 230
(607) 753-5488
www.cortland.edu/outdoor/

SUNY Cortland has recognized the value of outdoor and environmental education since the mid-1930s when it began to require physical education students to participate in two-week camping programs as part of their formal training. Opportunities for study and fieldwork in the outdoors have expanded greatly since that time, and many of Cortland's academic departments now make use of three adjunct campuses developed by the College to support outdoor and environmental education programs.

Outdoor Education Center at Raquette Lake

Jack C. Sheltmire, Director
P.O. Box 99, Raquette Lake, NY 13436
(315) 354-4784

Antlers: Located on the west side of Raquette Lake, Antlers serves both as a site for conferences and course work as well as a docking area for those embarking to Camp Huntington. A paved road from Route 28 leads to Antlers. This facility can accommodate approximately 45 guests. The location offers convenient access to the Adirondack Museum and other sites in the area.

Huntington Memorial Camp: Camp Huntington provides an outstanding natural setting for students to examine most aspects of the environment. This facility can accommodate up to 70 guests. The camp's forests, bogs and ponds serve as natural laboratories for courses in the biological sciences. Raquette Lake provides an elaborate research area in which students examine the unpolluted waters.

Physical education and recreation students make extensive use of the Outdoor Education Center in required and elective courses. Students from all disciplines enjoy opportunities at the Outdoor Education Center to learn how to use the outdoors as a classroom for academic subjects and to learn to develop an appreciation for the outdoor environment.

Hoxie Gorge Nature Preserve

R. Lawrence Klotz, Biological Sciences Department
Bowers Hall, Room 240
(607) 753-2715

Hoxie Gorge Nature Preserve is a 169-acre natural area close to the main campus. It provides many different environments, each with a unique set of characteristics that warrant careful study by the biologist or geologist or treat the casual visitor with a pleasant visual experience. The natural environments include pristine streams running through the gorge area, mature woodlands and old fields. The McDermott Nature Trail provides access to these areas.

Hoxie Gorge provides SUNY Cortland students, faculty and staff with the opportunity for class and individual study, research and enjoyment of the natural environment. Located only seven miles from campus, Hoxie Gorge is easily visited during a two or three hour class period. Approximately 1,000 students per year are involved in academic field study there.

Faculty members and a number of their students have utilized Hoxie Gorge extensively for research purposes. This research has attracted more than $500,000 in grants and resulted in approximately 30 journal publications. The research topics include insect chemical ecology and behavior, taxonomy of mushrooms, conservation biology of amphibians, pollination biology of flowering plants, and nutrient cycling in streams.

Robert C. Brauer Memorial Field Research Station

Jack Sheltmire, Director
Center for Environmental and Outdoor Education
Miller Building, Room 230
(607) 753-5488

SUNY Cortland's Robert C. Brauer Memorial Field Research Station is the only major geological facility in State University of New York. It is located in the town of Bethlehem, eight miles south of Albany and near the famed Helderberg Escarpment — an area known to geologists as a classic region of fossiliferous limestone and shale formations of the Devonian age.

A main building and bunkhouse on the 33-acre tract provide classroom, dining and sleeping accommodations for approximately 36 students. This facility is used by the College's Geology Department as a base for studies of the Catskill Mountains, mid-Hudson Valley and Taconic Range, which offer sections of Lower and Middle Paleozoic carbonate and terrigenous rocks, structurally complex and metamorphic terranes, and widespread Pleistocene landforms and deposits.

The Adirondacks and Berkshires also are accessible from Brauer Field Station for field trips and provide opportunities for examining igneous and high-grade metamorphic rocks of the Precambrian age.

The Brauer Field Station is available for use by other educational institutions and professional organizations. In addition to activities sponsored by the College's admissions and alumni affairs offices, SUNY Cortland and other institutions have used this facility for programs in biology, foreign language and geology.

Faculty and Administration

State University of New York

The University Today

State University of New York (SUNY) is a modern public university — a unified statewide system of 64 campuses enrolling around 410,000 students — the largest single, most diverse multi-campus university in the nation, meeting the needs of an increasingly diverse population. The University proudly counts more than 2.4 million alumni.

SUNY is a community of learning and inquiry, ranging from “full opportunity” campuses, providing access to higher education, to extremely selective and competitive programs rivaling the best in America, all within hours of virtually every New Yorker.

The varied missions of its campuses underscore the wide range of educational diversity and promise found in SUNY’s classrooms and lecture halls. Almost every field of academic or professional study is offered somewhere within the system — more than 6,650 courses of study overall.

The Campuses

Research and advanced graduate and professional studies are conducted primarily through the four University Centers at Albany, Binghamton, Buffalo and Stony Brook. In addition, the University’s five statutory colleges are located on the campuses of two private universities and offer a number of specializations leading to bachelor’s, master’s and doctoral degrees. The College of Environmental Science and Forestry offers undergraduate upper division and graduate work leading to degree opportunities through the doctorate. The Health Science Center at Brooklyn, Health Science Center at Syracuse, and the College of Optometry (graduate studies only) are three institutions dedicated exclusively to health-related degree programs.

Recognized nationally for their quality undergraduate instruction, SUNY’s 13 university colleges conduct programs of academic study through the master’s degree in a wide range of liberal arts and professional disciplines.

SUNY’s eight technology colleges have responded to societal change by developing new and innovative programs in public and human services as well as high-tech offerings. Programs range from agriculture to health and medical technologies, to engineering technology, to business and computer science, liberal arts and science, and human services.

The 30 locally sponsored community colleges under the program of State University of New York are the major entry point to the University for more than half of SUNY’s student body. In the forefront of efforts to meet the accelerating pace of technological developments and the requirements of continuing educational opportunity for all citizens, they play a pivotal role in training and retraining the state’s work force.

The Students

SUNY today means unprecedented promise for diverse student populations, those academically well-prepared and those less so, to take advantage of the opportunities that education can provide to improve their lives and the larger society. Approximately 36.6 percent of SUNY’s students are 25 years of age or older, reflecting the University’s commitment to continuing education for business, industry and the professions.

The University’s program for the educationally and economically disadvantaged has become a model for delivering better learning opportunities to young people and adults traditionally bypassed by higher education. Over the past 30 years almost 482,000 New York State residents have been served through the Educational Opportunity Program and Educational Opportunity Centers.

Forty percent of all New York State high school graduates enroll at a SUNY campus, and the University’s total enrollment is approximately 37 percent of all college students in the state.

Although more than 96 percent of SUNY’s undergraduates come from New York State, the rest come from every other state in the nation and from 150 foreign countries.

Those Who Teach

SUNY is committed to bringing to its students the best and brightest faculty, and the promise of a caring learning environment. The SUNY community of teachers and scholars is recruited from the finest graduate schools and universities and includes nationally and internationally recognized figures in all the major disciplines.

Faculty efforts and accomplishments have been recognized by numerous prestigious awards and honors, including the Nobel Prize, Pulitzer Prize, Guggenheim grants, MacArthur “genius” awards, Sloan, Danforth and Fulbright fellowships, and ACLS awards.

Meeting Society’s Needs

The University’s future-looking planning process articulated in “SUNY 2000: A Vision for the New Century,” places special emphasis on SUNY as a key player in meeting state needs in health care, public education, economic development, social services and the environment.

As a source of ideas, information, innovation and inventions, SUNY has become essential to the success and growth of New York’s business and industry and to the prosperity of all New Yorkers. Its special mission to the people of New York is to develop the base of research and knowledge on which the state’s economic life depends, and to offer every New York State resident access to the finest public higher education.

SUNY researchers pioneered nuclear magnetic resonance imaging, introduced time-lapse photography of forestry subjects, isolated the bacteria that causes lyme disease, developed the first implantable heart pacemaker and made hundreds of other contributions, inventions and innovations for the benefit of society.

The University’s libraries are the major resource supporting the teaching and research activities of students and faculty and are an important community resource, too. Of the more than 6 million items circulated SUNY-wide last year, more than one third of one million were made available to the wider community through loans of books to non-SUNY institutions, including school, business, public and special libraries. The University’s library collection exceeds 20 million books and other materials.
